Professor Geoffrey R. Robinson, University of Aberdeen, UK

Title: Counting characters and conjugacy classes

Abstract:

Conjugacy classes of some familiar groups are in some ways well-understood, but in other ways mysterious. For general finite groups, it is often difficult to describe, or even estimate, the number of conjugacy classes in terms of manageable invariants. In this talk, we discuss some situations when this can be done.