

MA in Music, Culture and Practice

Our innovative MA in Music, Culture and Practice is grounded in cutting-edge academic and creative research, positioning students at the forefront of scholarly exploration. This comprehensive degree equips students with the tools to pursue musicological and/or practice-based research, to foster specialisation and to nurture independent scholarship. Immersed in a vibrant and collaborative research culture, students will have the opportunity to interact not only with the Department's team of internationally renowned scholars and practitioners, but with visiting speakers, performers, and composers.
