PREFACE and ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

This referencing handbook is intended for use by staff and students of Maynooth University.

The first edition of this handbook received support from the National Digital Learning Repository. This second edition has been supported by the Higher Education Authority through the Strategic Innovation Development Fund (SIDF). The development of the handbook is part of a broader collaborative project between Maynooth University and its SIDF cluster partners, Athlone Institute of Technology, Dublin City University and Dundalk Institute of Technology. As such, any of our cluster partners are free to repurpose, reuse and/or rebrand this document as they see fit; where this occurs, this handbook should be referenced as the source document.

This work was compiled in consultation with the Library and with colleagues from the following Maynooth University Departments, Schools, Centres and Institutes:

- Adult and Community Education
- Ancient Classics
- Applied Social Studies
- Business
- Celtic Studies
- Centre for Teaching and Learning
- Design Innovation
- Economics, Finance and Accounting
- Education
- Electronic Engineering
- French
- Froebel
- Geography
- Law
- National Institute for Regional and Spatial Analysis - NIRSA
- Nua-Ghaeilge (Modern Irish)
- Modern Languages, Literatures and Cultures
- Writing Centre

These, and all other Maynooth University units, may freely repurpose and/or rebrand the document as suits their needs.

We would like to thank Dr. Alison Farrell of the Writing Centre, Maynooth University, Dr. Úna Crowley of the Centre for Teaching and Learning, Maynooth University and Professor Mark Boyle, Director of NIRSA, Maynooth University for their encouragement and help in the completion of this work.

GENERAL DISCLAIMER

This handbook is intended to enable staff and students to reference material using the Harvard System. While we have made every effort to ensure the information contained within it is accurate, we do not claim that this is a definitive guide.

1. INTRODUCTION

This referencing handbook is intended to be used as a guide for writing in-text citations and for compiling a Reference List or Bibliography using the Maynooth University (MU) Harvard Referencing style.

With the MU Harvard Referencing style, footnotes and endnotes are rarely, if ever used. Instead, the author's surname and year of publication are cited directly in the text. Full details of each in-text citation are provided in the Reference List or Bibliography. Latin phrases such as ibid are not recommended.

This is an overall guide to the MU Harvard Referencing style. However, students should always check with their own department or faculty for specific requirements in relation to individual subjects. When referencing, what is paramount is consistency.

1.1 Plagiarism

Plagiarism is the passing off of the ideas or writings of others as your own. It is a form of intellectual theft which is treated very seriously by the University and is heavily penalised in assignment grading. Kitchin and Fuller (2005: 32-35) provide a clear overview of the type of violations that incur sanctions. It is essential to correctly acknowledge all material obtained from other sources.

Full details on Maynooth University's policy on plagiarism can be found at: <http://www.maynoothuniversity.ie/sites/default/files/assets/document/NUIMaynoothPolicyonPlagiarism.pdf> (accessed 06 November 2014).

There are a number of different referencing methods and styles. This guide is concerned with the Harvard style, used by many academic departments in Maynooth University. When submitting articles to journals for publication, authors should ensure they follow the guidance provided by the editor regarding grammar, punctuation and style.

When submitting assignments electronically, many departments use a plagiarism detection software package called Turnitin.

1.2 Turnitin

Turnitin is the software system used by Maynooth University to help students manage the online submission of assignments and coursework. Further details on Turnitin and how it can assist students and staff to avoid potential instances of plagiarism in their work can be found on the Maynooth University Centre for Teaching and Learning website at: <https://www.maynoothuniversity.ie/centre-teaching-and-learning/technology-enhanced-learning/turnitin> (accessed 06 November 2014).

1.3 Definitions

Citation refers to the practice of acknowledging, in the body of your text, the work of other authors.

A Reference List contains the complete details of all the sources cited in the body of your text. All entries must be listed in alphabetical order.

A Bibliography contains the complete details of all the sources cited in the body of your text PLUS the complete details of any other sources you may have accessed while creating your work. All entries must be listed in alphabetical order.

1.4 General Guidelines for Citations, Reference Lists and Bibliographies

- In the MU Harvard Referencing style, items should always be arranged alphabetically.
- You should not break down the material according to type of resource (books, journals, electronic journals, etc.), unless you have been specifically instructed to do so. Therefore, unless instructed, all resources should be listed in the Reference List or Bibliography in strict alphabetical order.
- Each resource or item used should be listed in the Reference List or Bibliography only once. However, a resource should be cited in-text each time you use information from it.
- If using a number of references by the same author, the convention is to put the references in order by year, starting with the earliest first.
- If using a number of references by the same author and the same year, you should use letters (a, b, c, d) after the year in your in-text citations, and also in your Reference List or Bibliography, in order to distinguish them for the reader.
- If there is no author, the resource or item should be listed under the first significant word in the Reference List or Bibliography, i.e. not under ‘The’ or ‘A’.
- Figures and Tables should be numbered according to the chapter in which they appear. For example, Figure 4.1 is the first figure in Chapter Four and Table 6.2 is the second table in Chapter Six.
- A List of Figures and/or a List of Tables should appear separately, after the Table of Contents in a thesis, report or assignment.
- Use both authors’ surnames linked by “and” when citing them directly, but linked by “&” when citing indirectly. (For examples see sections 2.5 and 2.6)
- Do not include authors’ titles e.g. Prof, Dr.
- When citing year of publication use full digits, for example, 2001.
- Please note the importance of following the correct punctuation guidelines as outlined.
- URLs should not be included in in-text citations. URLs should be included in the Reference List or Bibliography citation, with the URL address underlined.

1.5 References with missing details

If no date can be established for your reference, use n.d.

If approximate year can be established, use c.

If no author is identifiable use Anon.

If place of publication is not specified, use s.l. (Latin: sine loco)

If name of publisher is not included, use s.n. (Latin: sine nomine).

1.6 Word Count

The usual convention is that a Reference List or Bibliography does not form part of the overall word count, nor do appendices or the Table of Contents. Generally, everything in the actual text itself, including, for example, quotations and in-text citations, forms part of the word count. However, students are advised to confirm this with their individual departments.

There are referencing software packages available, for example, EndNote Web, which can be accessed via the Maynooth University Library website.

2. CITATION IN THE TEXT

Reference to sources within the text must be cited, in addition to the final Reference List or Bibliography. This can be done in a number of ways depending on the nature of the sentence and paragraph being written. The MU Harvard Referencing style does not use footnotes; rather citations are inserted in the text with the full reference details appearing in the final Reference List or Bibliography.

2.1 Author's name cited directly in the text

When referring to an author's work in the text, their name is followed by the year of publication in brackets and forms part of the sentence.

Example: Ryan (2004) stresses the importance of referencing correctly when writing for academia.

2.2 Author's name not cited directly in the text

If an author's name is not cited directly in the text (as in 2.1 above) the author's surname and year of publication is placed at the relevant point in the sentence, or at the end of the sentence in brackets.

Example: When writing for academia it is essential that the publications being referred to are cited correctly (Ryan, 2004).

2.3 More than one author's name cited at the same point

If more than one author is being referred to, each one should be cited within the text.

Example: Smith (2001) and Murphy (2006) both refer to good citation practice as being essential when writing for academic purposes.

2.4 More than one author not cited directly at the same point

If more than one author is being cited, the authors' names should be listed in order of publication and separated by a semi-colon.

Example: Many authors (Ryan, 2004; Smith, 2006; Jones, 2007) have written about the importance of correct referencing procedures when writing for academia.

2.5 Two authors for the same work – cited directly

Both authors should be cited in the text.

Example: White and Green (1999) refer to the excessively long waiting lists ...

2.6 Two authors for the same work – not cited directly

Where two authors are not cited directly in the text, both authors' surnames and year of publication are placed at the relevant point in the sentence, or at the end of the sentence in brackets.

Example: Research undertaken in Ireland (White & Green, 1999) has highlighted that ...

2.7 More than two authors for the same work – cited directly

Where there are more than two authors for the same work, only the first author's surname should be used, followed by et al. meaning 'and others'. This is then followed by the year of publication in brackets.

Example: Barry et al. (2002) maintain that young people in Ireland today ...

2.8 More than two authors for the same work – not cited directly

Only the first author's surname followed by et al. meaning 'and others' and the year of publication are included in the text.

Example: A survey conducted among primary school children in Ireland found that many did not eat breakfast before coming to school (Jackson et al., 2000).

2.9 More than one author with the same surname in the same year

Authors must be differentiated and identified in the text by using their initials.

Example: Research carried out on levels of obesity among teenagers in Ireland (O'Connor, P., 2003) found levels to be increasing. This was corroborated by O'Connor, R. (2003) in further research on this topic.

2.10 An author referring to a similar point in multiple publications

Only list the author's surname once, followed by the years in chronological order, each separated by a comma.

Example: Newman (2000, 2002, 2003) maintains that the planning system in Ireland ...

2.11 An author with more than one publication in the same year

Each work should be differentiated by adding a lower case letter after the year of each item.

Example: Initial research by Parker (2001a) found evidence of corruption, but a follow up survey also conducted by Parker (2001b) casts doubt on those earlier findings.

2.12 Author of a book Foreword/Introduction/Preface

When citing a foreword, introduction or preface that has been written by someone other than the author of the book itself, cite the name of the section author.

Example: In the preface to the book, Jones (1995) outlines ...

2.13 No author on a publication

Where it is not possible to establish the author or authors of a work, include the title of the work in lieu of the author's surname, followed by the year of publication.

Example: A report published recently (Teenage eating habits in Ireland, 2013) ...

2.14 Ancient Texts

If possible, refer to a particular line, chapter or book of the work rather than using page numbers from a modern version. At times, it may be necessary to give approximate line numbers. This can happen when not all lines of the ancient text have been rendered exactly with a line from a modern translation of the work.

2.14.1 Poetic or Dramatic texts - Ancient Texts

Such texts include poems and plays and can be divided into books or scenes. They are always divided into individual lines.

Example: Virgil, Aeneid, 3.466

2.14.2 Prose texts – Ancient Texts

These include historical works, essays, speeches and letters. They are divided into books and chapters and sometimes, sections.

Example: Referring to the killing of Brutus and Cassius' disarming of the Republic (Tacitus, Annals, 1.2) ...

Where only one work by an author survives, no title is required.

Example: Observing the ethnicity of the peoples from ancient Illyricum, the geographer Strabo (4.6.10) ...

2.14.3 The Bible and other sacred texts

Page numbers are not included when citing religious texts. Specific details of chapters and/or verses should be included in your citation.

Example: "Thus the heavens and the earth were finished ..." (The Bible, Genesis. 2:1).

Note: for other sacred texts such as The Quran or The Tipitaka, it is very important that the text being cited is clearly located for the reader, and that the appropriate numbering system is used. Convention also dictates that the titles of religious texts are not italicised.

2.14.4 A book in The Bible

Provide the title of the chapter or book in brackets in place of the author, give the chapter number (in the case of The Bible), add a colon and provide the verse number.

Example: Asahal was the brother of Joab and was one of the mighty men of the armies (1 Chronicles 11:26).

2.15 Corporate authors

A work by a recognised organisation such as Aer Lingus, The Road Safety Authority or The Department of Education but which has no individual author listed, should be cited under the name of the body that commissioned it. The full name should be given in the first citation. Thereafter, it is acceptable to use the standard abbreviation.

Example: A report on road traffic deaths in Ireland (Road Safety Authority, 2009) ...
An earlier report (RSA, 2007) highlighted ...

2.16 Citing a website

Unless the author's name is obvious on the website, cite the name of the person or organisation responsible for the website and the date of the most recent update. If the most recent update is not available, use the date the website was created.

Example: Unicef is making every effort to supply clean drinking water to thousands of children affected by the floods and has instigated a vaccination programme in relief centres (Forde, 2010).

Note: Never include the web address (URL) in the in-text citation. Full website addresses appear only in the Reference List or Bibliography. The example above has been adapted from Unicef's website but only the name of the contributor is used in the text.

2.17 No date/copyright

If the date of publication is unknown, the abbreviation n.d. is used in place of the year to denote this.

Example: Murray (n.d.) states that ...

OR

Previous research on this topic (Murray, n.d.) demonstrated how ...

If only the copyright year is in the book, rather than the year of publication, the year should be preceded with a 'c'.

Example: Lewis (c2005) maintains that further research is required.

2.18 Chapter author in published work

Reference to work by an author of a chapter in a book edited by another person should be cited within the text using the author's name, not the editor's name. Details of the book chapter and the editor of the entire work will both appear in the final Reference List or Bibliography.

Example: Ray (2010) examines the participation of children in some of the poorest parts of the world.

Note: Ray's (2010) essay is one of thirty-one essays by different authors included in a book edited by two individuals.

2.19 Citing page numbers

Direct quotations or paraphrasing of specific sections of a source should also include page numbers in order to direct the reader to the exact location of the citation.

Example: "The origin of this work can be found in ..." (Peters, 2003: 141).

2.20 Secondary sources/second hand references (the source cited has not been seen)

Although always advisable to track down the original reference, there may be incidences where one has to reference work that has not been seen but which has been referred to in another work.

Example: Research carried out in America by Gilmore (2002, cited in Ford, 2008) found that ...

OR

In research conducted in Arizona (Mason, 1967, cited in Howard, 1988) it was found that 25% of those surveyed ...

Note: in a final Reference List, only works that have been cited in-text should be listed, whereas in a Bibliography, details of all sources should be included.

2.21 Newspaper article – no author listed

The title of the newspaper, followed by the year of publication, is inserted into the text.

Example: Anti-social behaviour orders were issued against four individuals (Meath Chronicle, 2008).

Note: the name of the newspaper is italicised.

2.22 Newspaper article – author known

It is the name of the author, not the newspaper title, which is inserted into the text.

Example: The rioting which followed the football match was brief, but violent (Ward, 2010).

2.23 Private sources

This includes letters, emails, memos, internal documents, theses and working papers not available to the general public. All material consulted for a paper or assignment must be acknowledged in the text in the normal fashion.

Example: Clooney (2007) argues that air travel should be free for all.

2.24 Conference proceedings

Conference proceedings are published after the conference itself. However, the date in brackets after the author's name refers to the date the paper was delivered.

Example: Pitt (2009) delivered an inspiring paper that focused on the concept of age regression. (For further details see section 3.11)

2.25 Acts of the Oireachtas/Acts of Parliament

Example: The Inland Fisheries Act (2010) deals with ...

If necessary, Acts in different countries can be distinguished by naming the countries in square brackets.

Example: Banking Act (2009) [United Kingdom] states ...

2.26 Government Policy Document

As per Section 2.13 'no author on a publication'.

Example: Recent Government housing policy (Delivering Homes, Sustaining Communities: Statement on Housing Policy, 2007) ...

2.27 European Union

Example: 2006/66/EC (Battery Directive) relates to ...

2.28 European institution publication

Example: Legislation relating to this issue (European Court of Auditors, 2014) was drafted ...

2.29 International organisation publication

Example: A publication by the World Health Organisation (2005) ...

2.30 Images (includes tables, maps, charts, diagrams, photographs, etc.)

The source of all images reproduced (in full or in part) in the body of your text must be acknowledged in the text with author and year as required for quotations. Full details then appear in the Reference List or Bibliography.

Example: In an aerial map of the area (Google Earth, 2012), two derelict cottages are visible in the left foreground.

Photographs should be labelled Plate and the source should also always be acknowledged, underneath the image, with the full reference given in the Reference List or Bibliography.

Plate 1: Player in Féile final, 2010

Source: Ní Mhórdha, F. (2010)

2.31 Images (includes tables, maps, charts, diagrams, photographs, etc.) adapted from a secondary source

If the information contained within is not one's own, the source must be acknowledged in the text with author and year as for quotations. For example, if you have created or adapted a table/chart from secondary data, this must be acknowledged.

Country or Area	Life Expectancy (at birth)	GDP (per capita) US$
Andorra	82	33546
Austria	80	35560
Belgium	79	34713
Botswana	52	13089

Table 1.2: Life expectancy and GDP per capita in selected countries

Source: UN data (2010) [online].

Note: Full details of the source should be inserted into the Reference List or Bibliography, with the URL underlined.

2.32 Computer Program

The in-text citation for a computer program is simply the surname of program owner (or company) followed by the year.

Example: Carson (2012) ...

Note: Convention dictates that it is the American spelling of 'program' that is used.

2.33 Mobile Applications

The in-text citation for a mobile application is simply the company (or surname of the app developer) followed by the year.

Example: Apple (2013) ...

3. REFERENCING

3.1 Books

3.1.1 One Author

Surname(s), Initial(s). (Year of publication) Title of Book: subtitle (if any). Series (if any), Volume number (if any), Edition (only if not the first edition). Place of publication: Publisher.

3.5 Ancient and Sacred Texts

3.5.1 Ancient Texts

Referencing ancient texts can be challenging for a number of reasons including occasional inconsistencies among referenced titles and also differences between an original and a translated version of a work. Furthermore, some ancient texts simply do not exist in modern form. However, what is most important is that the reader is able to locate the passage being referred to, no matter what edition is being read.

In the Reference List or Bibliography, details of the author, title, place and date of publication must be provided. If the work has been translated, details of the translator should be included in addition to the title of the modern publication. The publication date should be the modern, rather than the ancient, date the work was published.

Surname(s), Initial(s). if known, Title. Translated by Initial(s). Surname(s) (Year)
Location: Publisher.

Example: Homer, The Odyssey. Translated by R. Fagles (2006) London: Penguin.
